Self-Reflection

Describe how the artifact you selected shows your strengths & growth in specific core competencies. The prompt questions on the left - or other self-assessment activities you may have done - may guide your reflection process.

I selected one of my blog posts involving analyzing the quadratic function on a graph. I took the notes from class during this lesson and used the examples interpreting it. I took what mrs.burton said and turned it into my words which I believed made sense for me and others who may read it. I simplified some things like instead of using "compressed" and "expanded" to describe the look of a graph I used simpler words that may be easier to comprehend like "skinny" and "widened".

To communicate my learning I used lots of picture. On my iPad I wrote out a formula so it was clear and correct to see. I also had many photos of graphs which I created on desmos. I took multiple photos to show the different movements and how each graph looked and changed. I also used latex coding which showed proper exponents, subscripts, etc.

If I disagree with someone I ask to see their work and how they solved a problem. I would then compare it to mine and see where we differ in our solving techniques. I would then ask why they did and explain why I did what I did. I'm not sure how I developed this strategy I guess I've always been taught how to work and compromise with others respectfully.
