

Mother's Homemade Ramen

Honjin Ramen is a newly opened ramen restaurant in the Coquitlam area right by the Cineplex theatres in Coquitlam on Schoolhouse St. They aren't officially open until May 1 but their select soft opening menu was quite nice. Love that I don't have to go all the way downtown for some authentic ramen! My family and I went there for Friday night dinner for my mom's birthday. It was packed but we only waited for 10 mins. All the staff members are super friendly. My parents, my sisters and I were seated at a medium table next to the cashier and the kitchen window. The service was fast and efficient. We were greeted and seated right away. Menus and water were offered. Food arrived fairly quickly. We ordered shoyu ramen, miso ramen, tonkatsu don and takoyaki. The star for me is the ramen noodles which are made in-house and their slices of BBQ pork/chashu is done so perfectly tender and flavourful and it just melts in your mouth. The soft boiled marinated egg was perfectly cooked along with the broth was nice and rich. The miso ramen had a bit of extra veggies like corn, bean sprout and the broth almost tasted soft and rich to me, which I liked and would definitely order again! The restaurant is a bit big but it's cozy and warm with the decor is very beautiful with tables/chairs on both sides and down the hall with a restroom in the middle. Also, they have an open layout kitchen with a man making ramen noodles by hand. I love the authentic Japanese restaurant-bar feel. For starters, great price point. It is rare to find a ramen shop where you can enjoy a meal for under $10. The ramen bowls and rice bowls are around $9.95-10.95 and if you would like to put extra toppings the price is $1.00-2.500. It is worth a visit if you are in the area. Honjin Ramen is a great place to eat ramen if you want an authentic Japanese restaurant-bar feel or want to try ramen in a friendly environment with great food. Their food is made with a mother's love.
