Self-Reflection

In drafting, I had a project where I created my dream house on an app called Revit. I had a lot of fun designing my own house with the different rooms. I used my creative thinking skills to draft the layout of the house. I also used these skills when I chose what types of floors, stairs, windows, doors, furniture, appliances, etc., to use and when I created my own exterior siding wall. Speaking about the siding wall, I had a lot of complications while constructing it. When I first made it, parts of the wall were sticking through the window – which is not supposed to happen. This is when I used my critical thinking skills. I had to think of a way to still use siding but at the same time, it should not stick out. There were many other complications in my project, and I used my critical thinking skills to solve them. In spite of all the problems, my dream house came out really great.
