Description

In this project, we used our communication skills to create an ad for our ongoing "comment..." project. We used our communication skills through the planning process, the filming, and the reflection. We started off by using it during the planning portion, as we made our design choices. These choices, such as deciding the structure of the ad, targeting it to the group we wanted to attract, then writing a script that would be engaging and I would find amusing to watch. We communicated through the ad, whether it be visually or audibly, not only by talking, but also our physical cues, such as the scene where I was being attacked by information. We finally used communication in the reflection. Our goal was to explain all the design choices that we had made, as well as the vocabulary we used and why.

I can further develop my competencies in the future by better communicating with my partner Patrick. As he departed for Mexico, I was very much by myself for much of the planning sessions in class. I had trouble communicating what I wanted done in exactly which way, an aspect that is difficult whilst communicating by text. I can better lay out a plan before hand, and/or talk verbally on the phone and by screen sharing.
