

screen play poem

written by

Author

Address
Phone
E-mail

INT. BEDROOM - EVENING

EVAN WALKER is upset because his friends are teasing him for being a terrible video game player.

EVAN WALKER

(Evan reaches for the headset cord and unplugs it angrily from the controller. Then he throws the controller out the window as tears drip down his face. He climbs into bed and cries himself to sleep.)

Crying angrily.

INT. BEDROOM - MORNING

Evan wakes up the next morning and has a great idea, he goes to his computer and searches up products that can turn you in to the best video game player. He finds a link for a gaming microchip that promises to transform your video game player abilities.

EVAN WALKER

(Evan wakes up the next morning and a idea came to his mind, his eyes widened. He gets up and rushes over to his computer and searches gaming products that will give him an advantage. When he is scrolling down the page he comes across a link (gaming microchip that makes you the best at all video games.) He reaches for the mouse and clicks on the link. The website said (gaming microchip that attaches to your arm and instantly makes you the best only for 50$ buy one now before the deal ends.)

INT. BEDROOM DOWNSTAIRS - AFTERNOON

Within minutes of his purchase Evan hears someone knocking on the door downstairs. He gets up and goes down the stairs to answer the door. It is the delivery guy with Evans package. He gets package and goes back up to his room.

DELIVERY GUY

(When Evan opens the door the delivery guy gives him the package. With a voice deep and smooth enough to impress Morgan Freeman, he say;

"Hey, here you go, just sign here."

EVAN WALKER

(Evan nods his head while reaching out to sign the delivery guy's clip board.)

DELIVERY GUY

(He tries to take back the clip board and hand Evan the package at the same time. That causes the package to slip out of his hand and fall to the ground. He picks up the package and hands it to Evan. With a voice so soothing he asks;

"I'm so sorry would you like me to return it."

EVAN WALKER

(Evan was memorized by his voice and he nods his head no and picks up the package and heads up to his room.)

INT. BEDROOM - AFTERNOON

The scene starts as Evan is going back up the stairs and sits on his bed and starts ripping open that package. Inside is a small thin black rectangular plate about the size of a USB. He grabs the instructions and reads them, it says "put on left wrist right below palm." He puts the microchip on his upper wrist and he watches it dissolve into his arm. He looked around his wrist and it didn't leave a mark and Evan does not feel any different.

EVAN WALKER
(Evan looks down at his wrist and turns it and it looked the same.)

INT. BEDROOM - NIGHT

Scene starts him racing to his Xbox, he reaches and presses the on button as he grabs his controller. He starts playing he can not believe how good he is playing, his aim was so good that he didn't miss a single shot, he also got a sixth sense like a gut feeling, he knew everything before it happened. He started to play with his friends, he won instant respect from everyone. As the day goes on he notices a slight difference in his right hand, every so often it twitches. Evan ignores it because he is having too much fun.

EVAN WALKER
(Evan looks at his right hand every time it twitches and he shakes his hand every time it does.)

INT. BEDROOM AND KITCHEN - EARLY MORNING

The scene starts showing Evan playing video games and a message pops up on screen, "A Few Hours Later". The game ends and Evan realizes he hasn't eaten anything all day. So he gets up and heads downstairs to get a snack. He goes to the fridge and opens it and looks around and finds a left over steak. He takes it out of its container and opens a cabinet to get a knife and he starts cutting the steak. As he's cutting his hand starts shaking and he tries to drop the knife but Evan's hands are seizing up, being surprised by the sudden sharp pain in his hands, he pulls back his hands aggressively trying to relieve the pain. He forgot about the knife.