

Imagery and Figurative Language:

- Simile: We'll be smilin' like we expected. Sweet victory, one method.

Tone, Attitude:

- Motivational
- "When we scream, Our lips don't make a sound. We march with feet on solid ground. We walk, where no one wants to go, On this untraveled road." I think that the author is trying say that people won't listen to us and we won't seem to be making any progress but we still go on.

Style:

- Lyric.
- Narrative.
- There are twelve stanzas.
- There isn't really a rime scheme.

Interpretation:

- What I think that the poet is trying to say is to believe in your self. You can do great things but if you let people tell you that you can't then you never will. So stand up for your dreams, don't let people's words bring you down, go on your own path/untraveled road and "Sing it loud, so the world can't drown us out. What
- The lead singer in Thousand Foot Krutch is Trevor McNevan.