Self-Reflection

Describe how the artifact you selected shows your strengths & growth in specific core competencies. The prompt questions on the left - or other self-assessment activities you may have done - may guide your reflection process.

I chose creative and critical thinking for this project, because I had to think of different ways to explain concepts in the exponents unit. I had to think creatively in order to write my explanations and come up with examples that would support my explanations well. In order to do this, I had to have a good understanding of each math concept to be able to explain it in my own words in a clear way. This was a little difficult for me because at first, the exponent unit wasn't very clear to me or easy for me. I had to try by best and learn from my mistakes. As I'm reaching the end of this unit, I'm still making some mistakes and I'm still trying to improve my speed when it comes to solving expression with exponents, but I feel that I have a much better understanding of the different things that I've learnt in the exponents unit, such as negative exponents, different exponent laws (quotient law, product law, power law), negative coefficients, how to apply an exponent to brackets, square roots and more. Overall, I would say that I've learnt a lot during this unit. I think that this EduBlog post has helped improve my understanding for this unit, because I had to think of how to write explanations for the different concepts in my own words and clearly show my thinking and strategies. When we reviewed our peers' work, I had to explain some concepts to people, and it helped me have a better understanding of the things that I was explaining.
