How does your street art design demonstrate your social awareness of and responsibility for the place in your community for which the art was designed for? What is the relationship between the artwork and the community place? How is your street art designed to address a social situation?

In art 11, I have finished the final project of the street art unit. My street art design can really demonstrate my social awareness and responsibility for the place in my community because it is targeted for all the students in the community from Kindergarten to University. The wall I intended the work to be put is near the entrance of an academy, which is a place a lot of the students in the community study schoolwork, like tutorials, and also extracurricular activities like drawing and painting. I believe that every student must be tired and stressful attending tutorials, so I decided to make the wall more interesting; therefore, students going to classes can feel better when they enter the building. The main purpose would be to cheer up students by the funny and cute characters that can make them smile and also the supportive message behind. The relationship between my artwork and the academy is that there are monkeys holding cheerleading pom poms all over the place in the artwork, the message of it would be "you can do it", meaning that all the students can make it through the day or the hard times. This street art might helps and benefits students from Kindergarten to University, which would totally benefit most of the students in the community.
