

All The Light You Cannot See Infographic

Anthony Doerr

Doerr was born in Cleveland, Ohio in the year 1973

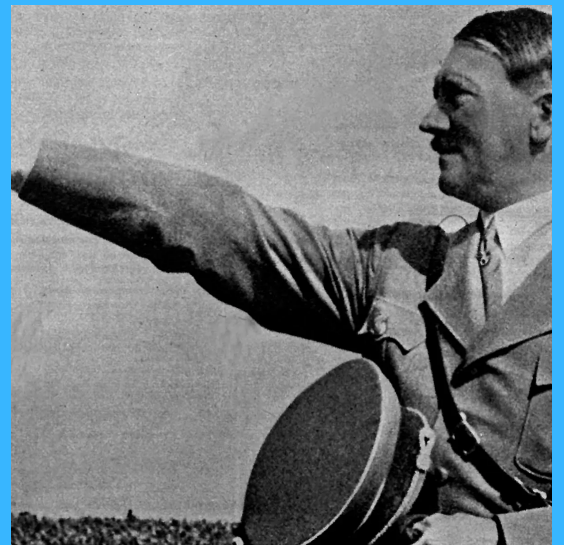

His book "All The Light You Cannot See" won the 2015 Pulitzer Prize for fiction

Doerr gained the inspiration to write "All The Light You Cannot See" on a train ride while being fascinated by science and nature

He has won five O. Henry Prizes, an award given to short stories of exceptional merit

Doerr has worked and lived in Africa and New Zealand, which is why many of his stories take place in those locations

It is speculated that at some time in the year 1941, Hitler declared his "Final Solution" which was the massacre of the Jewish population in Europe. Not ordering their exit from the continent, but their annihilation overall.

Hitler had an ideology of a master race, the Aryans, and prior to and during the second world war, the Nazis leaned heavily on antisemitism, going as far as destroying the lives of all the Jewish people in sight

During World War Two, in the concentration camps run by the Nazis, the rights of millions were stripped away, and innocent lives were taken. There was fear amongst the Jewish people and the living conditions were horrible, filled with terrible food, labor and being sent away from families

It is important to keep note of all history that has taken place, for purposes such as: Honoring those who fought hard in the bad parts of history, not repeating the same mistakes as those who have affected others negatively, seeing how we can take precautions with certain situations that reoccur and understanding the human race as a whole.

